Interesting Games to be Played Both in North and South on Saturday.

GAME AT CITY OF NORFOLK

North Carolina and Virginia Polytechnic Institute to Measure Strength.

A great many interesting foot-ball games are scheduled for Saturday, among them the most interesting in this State being that at Norfolk in which the University of North Carolina will measure strength with the team from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The V. P. I. feam was beaten by Virginia in this city team was beaten by Virginia in this city on October 24th by a score of 21 to 0, but in this game the Blacksburg eleven was in this game the Blacksburg eleven was deprived of the services of Carpenter, its best ground gainer and mainstay of the team. He will be in the game with Carolina, and that will make a difference. The game promises to be a very evenly matched one, with the chances favoring a victory by Virginia Polytechnic Institute It the Carolinans can defeat the tute. If the Carolinians can defeat the Blackeburg boys with Carpenter playing it will mean a very close game with Virginia on Thansgiving Day in this city.

The Blacksburg and Chapel IIIII teams appear to be well balanced, both in weight and skill, and their game at Norfolk should prove a most brilliant battle

In the North, Princeton will play La In the North, Princeton will play La-fayette, a strong team which has made a very fine showing, but hardly in Prince-ton's class. On the following Saturday the first of the great games, that be-tween Yals and Princeton, the real rivals for championship honors, will be played. On the same day Harvard will meet Pennsylvania in their annual game, and a react later. November 21st, Yals and Harweek later November 21st. Yale and Harweek later, November 21st, Yais and Har-vard will meet for their great annual match. The struggle between Princeton and Yale should be by long odds the greatest exhibition of foot-ball in the East, the two being evenly matched and very powerful, both in offense and de-

Princeton has the better record of the two, if there be any difference. The Tigers have not been ecored on during the entire season. Their defeat of Cornell by so large a score (44 to 0) last Saturday sas aurprise, but so was Yale's victory over Columbia. Dewitt, Princeton's great drop kicker, contributed ten points to the score by field goals, the other thirty-four being made by straight foot-ball. In the Yale-Columbia game five points were made on a field goal, and the other twenty by touchdowns and a safety.

Columbia having defeated Amherst and Pennsylvania, was deemed a most formidable team, but their showing against Yale was disappointing. In fact, during the first half, Columbia lived up to expectations, preventing a score by Yale and finishing the half on pretty even terms. In the second half, however, the superior condition of Yale was shown by the manner—with which they plewed through their opponents' line and rolled up the score. It seems to have been a clear case of overtraining by Columbia. The team had grown stale and out of condition, and was not the team that faced Pennsylvania. In fact, Columbia was then at its best, a condition difficult to maintain for long. Yale, on the contrary, never reaches prime until the crucial games of the season. The New Haven men played a heady sam eagainst Columbia, punting in the first half and reserving their strength for the second, during which they sailed into the Columbia serving their strength for the second, dur-ing which they sailed into the Columbia line like an avalanche and swept the New York men aside. Princeton has a brilliant record, espe-

New York men aside.

Princeton has a brilliant record, especially in defense, no team having crossed its goal line or even secured a field goal. Dewitt is pretty sure to land one or more field goals if the team can get the ball within striking distance of Yale's line. In fact, the Jerseymen appear to be quite as strong as the Yale team, and it seems to be a pretty even thing, with the chances, if anything, favoring Princeton.

In the Harvard-Pennsylvania game it is difficult to compare the strength of the two. Pennsylvania showed weakness in the Columbia game last Saturday. Harvard has been consistently weaker than usual, having been beaten by Amherst and almost defeated by the Indians. The two look like a pretty even thing. Last Saturday Carlisles scored eleven points to the crimson's twelve, but five of these were made on a field scal and the other six on a trick of doubtful legality. Harvard ought to play I ennsylvania to a standstill, if the Camoridge men do not win the game.

Unless all signs fail, Yale will defeat Harvard by at least three touchdowns, if not by a greater margin. The showing of the two indicated consistently that Yale is easily the stronger. In the West Point game Yale won, 17 to 5, and Harvard defeated the soldiers 5 to 0.

North Carolina last Saturday lost to North Carolina last Saturday lost to Kentucky University by a margin of one point, the score being 6 to 5. Two weeks before that the University of Virginia de-feated the Kentuckians 6 to 0. But those two weeks make a big difference. In short, North Carolina is not yet up to the strength of Virginia two weeks ago.

There are the occupations which call for more judyment, nerve and skill born of practical experience in a life on the water, than that of a tugboat captain, especially in the narrow and crooked channels of the James.

In fact, there is little dount that the orange and blue will win in the Thanksgiving Day game, the only question being the size of the score. Chapel Hill men are willing to wager that Virginia will not win by seventeen or eighteen points, while adherents for the Virginia eleven are offering odds of ten to seven that the men from Charlittesville will win the game.

On the showing of the two teams there

On the showing of the two teams there is reason to believe that Virgina will win by from fifteen to eighteen points, unless the team takes a great slump in the next fortnight. Saturday's game at Norfolk between Carolina and Blacksburg will afford the best gauge of the strength of the University of Virginia and Carolina elevens. If the Virginia Polytechnic Institute wins it would seem to assure a Virginia victory on Thanksgiving Day by at least three touchdowns. In any event, it is going to be a brilliant match and well worth going far to see. The Carolinians do not hope to win against Virginia, but they will endeavor to make the victor's score as small as possible.

One of the most interesting games to be played in the South will be that at Norfolk on the 21st, when the Univer-sity of Virginia will tackle the Carlisle Indians. Virgine won last year, but will place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

CHRONIC SORES

A chronic sore is the very heat evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while autiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. On Saturday next Richmond College will play the strong eleven from Columbian University, D. C., and the game promises to be a very pretty struggle. The Richmond eleven deserves much credit for the fine team they have built up this season. In Lankford and Smith the college has a promising pair of backs, and among the other strong players on the eleven are Spilman and Hudgins. The entire line is strong and well trained, and the team is the best that has represented the college in years.
